

On this page:

What is a service agreement?

Things to consider when making a service agreement

More information

What is a service agreement?

When you agree to use your NDIS budget to pay for supports, you are entering into a contract with your provider.

A service agreement is an agreement between you and your provider that makes it clear what you have both agreed to. It is covered by Australian Consumer Law.

The NDIA recommends having a written service agreement so participants and providers are clear about what each party has agreed to. For example, what supports will be delivered and how they will be delivered.

Making a service agreement is a negotiation between you and your provider. You can ask another person to help you do this, such as a family member or friend.

Your provider may have a standard service agreement that you may like to use, or you can create your own.

Providers should support you to understand any service agreement using the language and way of communicating you understand.

A written service agreement must be in place for Specialist Disability Accommodation (SDA) supports under the NDIS.

For other supports, the NDIA does not require a written service agreement.

The NDIA may review service agreements between providers and participants as part of a compliance review to ensure services are provided in line with what's been agreed with the participant.

Things to consider when making a service agreement

When you negotiate a service agreement, you should understand things like:

- what supports are being provided

- the cost of the supports
- the responsibilities of your provider
- your responsibilities
- how long the agreement goes for and how it can be changed
- the dispute resolution process.

Things to think about when making a service agreement \(PDF 182KB\) and Making a Service Agreement: Things to think about - Easy Read \(PDF 4MB\) can help you when you are thinking about what to include when making a service agreement.

More information

You can find more information about using service agreements, or you can contact us.

Find more resources about recording your providers in accessible formats on the booklets and factsheets page.

Other information is also available from these organisations:

NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission

The NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission (NDIS Commission) is responsible for regulating providers.

More information about service agreements is available on the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission website.

The Australian Competition and Consumer Commission

The Australian Competition and Consumer Commission (ACCC) has information about entering into a contract and information for consumers with a disability.

More information about your rights under Australian Consumer Law is available on the ACCC website.

Australian Taxation Office (ATO)

Many, but not all, NDIS supports provided to NDIS participants are GST-free.

You can find further information about the NDIS and GST on the ATO website.

---

This page current as of

17 April 2024