

The KPMG Paper explores some of the issues around the NDIS transition to full scheme.

NDIA chairman Bruce Bonyhady says the Agency is totally committed to delivering the full National Disability Insurance Scheme as quickly as possible and sustainably.

“What this KPMG paper does is identify some of the lessons from the trial sites to date together with some of the complexity surrounding rollout to full scheme. It is one of the many inputs, which will be considered as we start to talk to our stakeholders about the best way forward,” Mr Bonyhady says.

“We are committed to getting the NDIS right, both for those waiting on it now, and for future generations.”

Feedback for this report has closed. Thank you for your comments.

---

KPMG Review of the optimal approach to transition to the full NDIS

Documents

- Download KPMG Review of the optimal approach to transition to the full NDIS: PB KPMG transition review DOCX
- Download KPMG Review of the optimal approach to transition to the full NDIS: PB KPMG transition review PDF

Return to Publications

This page current as of
2 December 2018