The updated NDIS Pricing Arrangements and Price Limits (PAPL) 2025-26 has been published, following the release of the 2024-25 Annual Pricing Review recommendations.

The PAPL (previously the NDIS Price Guide) assists participants and disability support providers in understanding how price controls for supports and services work in the NDIS.

The pricing updates come into effect on 1 July 2025.

The NDIA has made further PAPL updates, in addition to the APR recommendations. These include:

Changing the early childhood age limit from 7 to 9 years old.

The early childhood approach now covers children up to 9 years old. This change is shown in the PAPL.

New text added to explain provider responsibilities and conflicts of interest.

This explains a provider's duty to declare and manage any conflict of interest.

Visit the Pricing arrangements page to download the updated 2025-26 PAPL and support catalogues.
