On this page:

What the NDIS pricing arrangements are
What the NDIS pricing arrangements are for
What the NDIS pricing arrangements are like

> Update: The Minister for Disability and the National Disability Insurance Scheme has made his first pricing determination for NDIS supports. This is set out in the pricing schedules.

What the NDIS pricing arrangements are

The Minister's pricing determination sets maximum prices for supports for the 2026-27 financial year.

The NDIS pricing schedules set out the maximum prices payable for NDIS supports, including specialist disability accommodation (SDA).

The maximum prices in the schedules only apply to NDIA-managed and plan-managed participants.

As per the schedules:

- we can't pay a claim for an amount more than the maximum price
- participants aren't entitled to a payment if it is more than the maximum price
- NDIS providers can't charge more than the maximum price.

You and your providers can continue negotiate what is the appropriate and reasonable price for you and your NDIS supports needs up to the maximum price.

What the NDIS pricing arrangements are for

We regularly review and make changes to NDIS pricing. We consider things like the business costs of delivering NDIS supports and wages for support workers.

NDIS prices need to be fair, based on evidence and sustainable so you can continue to have access to high-quality supports.

What the NDIS pricing arrangements are like

The NDIS pricing schedules

Download the NDIS pricing schedules:

- NDIS pricing schedule (PDF 1MB) – effective 24 September 2026
- NDIS pricing schedule (DOCX 496KB) – effective 24 September 2026

Download the pricing schedule for specialist disability accommodation (SDA):

- NDIS pricing schedule for SDA (PDF 1MB) – effective 24 September 2026
- NDIS pricing schedule for SDA (DOCX 363KB) – effective 24 September 2026

Tip: You can ask for help to understand or translate the pricing arrangements.

You can get help to navigate the arrangements by talking about them with a family member, friend or someone who helps you with your plan, like your my NDIS contact or support coordinator.

Related information

Pricing arrangements and price limits

What is the support catalogue

What are NDIS supports

This page current as of 24 September 2026