From 1 February, the NDIA will introduce plan renewals.

Plan renewals will replace plan continuations, sometimes known as ‘plan rollovers’.

Renewed plans will last for 12 months. They will:

- calculate the participant’s funding and supports based on their most recent plan
- remove any once-off supports included or rolled over from previous plans
- have a ‘plan end date’, rather than a ‘reassessment date’
- keep the previous plan management and funding period settings, where possible.

Renewed plans will apply the support budget reductions for social, economic and community participation and improved daily living skills.

All NDIS plans, except new framework plans, will be renewed or reassessed by 30 September 2027. This means some plan ends dates will be brought forward.

We’ll give participants 60 days in advance if we’re renewing their plan. Participants whose plan end date will be brought forward will receive 70 days’ notice.

Participants should aim to spend any funding for once-off supports before their plans are renewed.

This is because funding for once-off supports won't be automatically rolled over when plans are renewed.

Participants who have not been able to purchase once-off supports prior to their plan being renewed may be able to ask us to vary their plan to have the funding added back into their plan.

We’ll use the information from a participant’s most recent plan to create their renewed plan. Participants don't need to ask for any new reports or assessments ahead of their plan being renewed.

Participants can speak with their support coordinator, my NDIS contact or contact us if they have any questions about plan renewals.
