
Improving outcomes for participants who require Supported Independent Living (SIL): Provider and Sector consultation paper

We have put forward a proposal for short-term improvements to SIL. Although SIL helps many participants meet their goals of living a more independent life, giving participants choice and control over their SIL supports remains difficult.

We have proposed a solution to this problem, which explores how operational activities and billing arrangements can be improved. The aim is to build a transparent, simpler, and structured process that will see funding consistently distributed based on participant need while ensuring equity and NDIS sustainability.

We would like to understand what providers think of the solution proposed in the SIL consultation paper. Anyone else with an interest in SIL, including participants receiving SIL supports and their families, can also submit a response to the paper, which is also available in Easy Read.
