24 December 2021

As part of the NDIA's commitment to be more open and transparent, we are pleased to share with you the results of our consultation on interventions for children on the autism spectrum.

From the feedback we received, we have decided not to progress with indicative funding bands for children with autism as proposed in the consultation paper. Instead, we will continue to work with the disability community to understand emerging evidence and best practice interventions and what long term outcomes can be achieved through different models of support.

We will also consider the feedback as we continue to improve the way we support young children and their families.

We have also recently published consultation summary reports for our work on improving:

- Home and Living
- Support coordination for participants
- Support for Decision Making.

We are very grateful to everyone that took the time to provide feedback on a broad range of topics throughout the year and look forward to working more closely with participants and the disability sector in 2022.

Related articles

NDIA releases consultation paper on best practice early intervention autism supports

Date
30 March 2021

NDIA welcomes release of Autism CRC report on early intervention

Date
9 November 2020
Category

- News

You said, we heard: Post-consultation reports available

Date
26 March 2021
Read more news